

15.1: Biblical Insight

Applying the Bible to Business

In the vocation of management, we are entrusted with significant responsibility. The Holy Scriptures show us that, with this responsibility, much will be required of us, “From everyone who has been given much, much will be demanded; and from the one who has been entrusted with much, much more will be asked” (Luke 12:48). The vocation of management is important, without good management, complex enterprises tend to become chaotic in ways that threaten their very existence. Good management brings a degree of order and consistency to key dimensions like the quality and profitability of products. Management is about coping with complexity (Kotter, 2001).
