

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Licensing

1: How Does an Organization Accumulate and Organize the Information Necessary to Prepare Financial Statements?

- 1.1: A Review of the Essential Role of Transaction Analysis
- 1.2: An Introduction to Double-Entry Bookkeeping
- 1.3: Preparing Journal Entries
- 1.4: The Connection of the Journal and the Ledger
- 1.5: The Need for Adjusting Entries
- 1.6: Preparing Various Adjusting Entries
- 1.7: Preparing Financial Statements Based on Adjusted Balances
- 1.8: Chapter 1 Appendix – Financial Statement Preparation
- 1.9: End-of-Chapter Exercises

2: In a Set of Financial Statements, What Information Is Conveyed about Receivables?

- 2.1: Accounts Receivable and Net Realizable Value
- 2.2: Accounting for Uncollectible Accounts
- 2.3: The Problem with Estimations
- 2.4: Estimating the Amount of Uncollectible Accounts
- 2.5: End-of-Chapter Exercises

3: How Does a Company Gather Information about Its Inventory?

- 3.1: Determining and Reporting the Cost of Inventory
- 3.2: Perpetual and Periodic Inventory Systems
- 3.3: The Calculation of Cost of Goods Sold
- 3.4: Determining Inventory on Hand
- 3.5: The Necessity of Adopting a Cost Flow Assumption
- 3.6: The Selection of a Cost Flow Assumption for Reporting Purposes
- 3.7: Applying Cost Flow Assumptions to Determine Reported Inventory Balances
- 3.8: Reporting Inventory at the Lower-of-Cost-or-Market
- 3.9: End-of-Chapter Exercises

4: In a Set of Financial Statements, What Information Is Conveyed about Long Term Assets?

- 4.1: The Reporting of Property and Equipment
- 4.2: Determining Historical Cost and Depreciation Expense
- 4.3: Alternative Patterns for Calculating Depreciation
- 4.4: Recording Depreciation Expense for a Partial Year
- 4.5: Recording Expenditures That Affect Older Assets
- 4.6: Identifying and Accounting for Intangible Assets
- 4.7: The Balance Sheet Reporting of Intangible Assets
- 4.8: Recognizing Intangible Assets Owned by a Subsidiary
- 4.9: Accounting for Research and Development
- 4.10: End-of-Chapter Exercises

5: In a Set of Financial Statements, What Information Is Conveyed about Liabilities?

- 5.1: Basic Reporting of Liabilities
- 5.2: Reporting Current Liabilities Such as Gift Cards
- 5.3: Accounting for Contingencies
- 5.4: Accounting for Product Warranties
- 5.5: Debt Financing
- 5.6: The Issuance of Notes and Bonds
- 5.7: Pricing and Reporting Term Bonds
- 5.8: Accounting for Leases and Installment Notes
- 5.9: End-of-Chapter Exercises

6: In a Set of Financial Statements, What Information Is Conveyed about Shareholders' Equity?

- 6.1: The Issuance of Common Stock
- 6.2: Issuing and Accounting for Preferred Stock and Treasury Stock
- 6.3: The Issuance of Cash and Stock Dividends
- 6.4: The Computation of Earnings per Share
- 6.5: End-of-Chapter Exercises

Index

Index

Glossary

Detailed Licensing