

BIOPHYSICAL CHEMISTRY

We wrote this text to serve as the primary source for a series of Biophysical Chemistry courses that we regularly teach as faculty members of the Chemistry Department at Western Washington University, which serve the needs of undergraduate Biochemistry program. The present text is based on the assumption of what WWU Biochemistry majors know and do not know at the time they enter their final year of study toward Bachelor of Science degree in Biochemistry.

Serge L. Smirnov and James McCarty

Serge L. Smirnov and James McCarty
Western Washington University

